WHITE PLANS HUGE STATE BOND ISSUE

NORWALK BOASTS FINE CITY LIGHT PLANT AND LOW RATES

12 MILLIONS FOR SCHOOL, OHIO RELIEF

State - Wide Election on Nov. 7 for Issue is Idea of Governor

NEW FIGHT SEEN

Re-consider Sales Tax, Governor's Plea

COLUMBUS, Aug. 2.—A $12,000,000 bond issue for schools and unemployment relief, to be voted upon at the state-wide election on Nov. 7, is the foremost part of the new alternative tax program which Governor George White's "brain trust" has drafted for presentation to the special session of the legislature late this month.

This was learned today on unquestioned authority on the heels of Governor White's flat declaration yesterday that he will again submit the retail sales tax as one of the three alternative plans.

The third section of the program drawn up by the governor's advisers proposes a new schedule of "nuisance" and "luxury" taxes, aimed at many articles as yet untouched by state excise taxes.

TO DIVIDE MONEY

Money derived from the bond issue, providing it were sanctioned by the legislature and approved by the electorate, would be divided into two parts, as follows: $7,000,000 for schools, mostly to be distributed to state-aid schools which now face the danger of being unable to open, and $5,000,000 for food and clothing for Ohio's poor.

The total is subject to change if relief conditions are altered. Governor White is understood to have given hearty approval to this part of the alternate program.

While the bond issue, if approved, would not provide money until late in the fall, state officials believe that an attempt to push through a bond issue would satisfy the federal relief administration which has served notice that it will grant no more relief money to Ohio until new relief money is raised within the state.

NEUTRAL STAND

Governor White, according to present intentions, will take a neutral stand on the various taxation suggestions, simply telling the legislature it must enact some kind of a program speedily to enable Ohio to continue furnishing relief money to its needy.

Sporting goods, gas and electric appliances, firearms and ammunition, low-priced amusement admissions and almost a score of other items have been suggested for taxation under the new proposed "nuisance tax" schedule.

A fight is already brewing against the governor's plan to again ask for consideration of the sales tax, which was overwhelmingly defeated several weeks ago in the house of representatives.

Senator Daniel J. Gunsett (D), of Van Wert, chairman of the Senate taxation committee, and author of most of the legislature's

Hull Wants to Know Whether He or Moley Is Secretary of State

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Those returning from the London Conference say that the mountaineer jaw of Secretary Cordell Hull is set like that of his Tennessee father, reputed to have taken ten years to "get his man."

Hull's man in this case is Professor Raymond Moley, his assistant secretary of state. Many things contributed to Hull's ire against Moley, but the latest one to leak out is the story of the London stabilization negotiations.

Moley, newly arrived in London, sailed into the conversations with vim. He conferred with the gold bloc countries over their plan of semi-stabilization — to prevent fluctuation of currencies — and approved it. At one of these conferences, he called up Hull on the telephone:

"Will you come over to No. 10 Downing Street and initial this stabilization agreement, Mr. Secretary?" he asked.

"What stabilization agreement?" replied Hull. "I have no authority to approve a stabilization agreement."

"Oh, it's all right," said Moley, "I have the O. K. of the President."

The conference waited for two days for that O. K. The French finance minister postponed his return to France. The delegates stayed up nights. Even Moley got nervous.

Finally the message came. It was the most bluntly worded rebuff received by any recent international conference.

So Cordell Hull is returning determined to find out who is to be Secretary of State — he or Moley?

Diplomatic Duel

A bitter under-cover war is taking place between career diplomats and the politicians for the choice political plums in the Diplomatic Service.

Jim Farley is leading one faction. Billy Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, the other. Recently the battle raged around the American Minister to Jugoslavia. Farley wanted the appointment of Julia Woodruff Wheelock, New York widow. Phillips wanted Charlie Wilson, a career man who had been ousted from Rumania when Roosevelt appointed a protege of Senator Sheppard to that post. Finally Phillips won. Wilson got the job.

More recently the fight has been over the Ambassadorship to Chile. Farley has put forward Sproulle Braden, son of the copper king, heavy contributor to the Democratic campaign fund. Phillips has put forward George T. Summerlin career diplomat of Rayville, La., now minister to Venezuela.

Summerlin has spent his life in the service, has a colorless record, seldom does anything for fear of making mistakes. But Branden's apointment is resented by many Chileans because of the big copper interests his father had in Chile.

Neither one is a brilliant appointment.

Aged in the Wood?

Dr. James W. Doran, head of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, is having many callers these days seeking approval of formulas and methods for quick aging of whiskey. The impending repeal of the 18th Amendment has set distillers on a world-wide search for a solution of the problem of aging without age.

So far Doran has had no formula submitted that equals the centuries-old process of aging in the wood. Discussing the matter the other day he recalled an incident in the early days of his revenue service.

"We had a case of moonshining down in the Appalachian mountain," Doran related. "The issue was over the age of the liquor. One old mountaineer was called as a witness by the defense, as a man who could tell the difference between green and aged whiskey. The government counsel asked

MILLER TRIAL BEGINS TODAY; JURORS NAMED

Attorneys in Opening Statements Deny Former Official's Guilt

MANY WITNESSES

State to Charge Miller, Cramer Agreement

Introduction of testimony was started in the trial of L. E. Miller, Watt-st, former city service director, before Judge J. W. Adkins in common pleas court when the afternoon session opened at 1 o'clock Wednesday.

A jury was selected in record time Wednesday morning and court adjourned until 1 p. m. as none of the witnesses was subpoenaed until that time.

Mr. Miller is charged with being personally interested in transactions for the city during his term as service director following revelations of State Examiner Beverly. He was indicted by the grand jury sometime ago.

Over 25 witnesses are expected to testify in the case, 24 already having been subpoenaed.

The jury includes 10 men and two women and is composed of Mrs. John Bell, Mrs. Anna Wing, F. M. Stout, Ara Crawford, J. M. Dountz, W. B. Grabill, Harry Dresbach, William H. Hulse, Carnaal Rasor, George Betts, Sr., George C. Griffith and Harley Walston.

GUILT DENIED

Mr. Miller entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment preceding the opening of the trial. In his opening statements, Prosecutor Ray Davis said that the state expected to show that Mr. Miller, employing Harry Cramer, a blacksmith, entered into agreements with Cramer to split the profits on jobs performed for the city of Circleville. Mr. Cramer was employed in the blacksmith shop in the rear of Mr. Miller's home, Watt-st.

Powerful Machine, Similar To Scotland Yard, Believed Underway.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 2.—A new and powerful governmental machine, built to grind out the social flotsam behind a recent wave of kidnaping and gangster outrages, was seen today as the probable product of a conference between President Roosevelt and his assistant secretary of state, Raymond Moley.

Neither the president nor Moley has affirmed or denied reports that such a unit was to be set up. On the other hand, Moley, who spent several hours with the president, did reveal he has given such an organizatoin, described as a sort of super-Scotland yard for this country, considerable thought. He called on Mr. Roosevelt at "Krum Elbow," the president's estate here, where he is vacationing for ten days.

In this connection, Attorney General Cummings earlier revealed that he has done some work toward planning an organization of this sort. The president, Moley, known as the head of the executives so-called "brain trust" of advisers,

MARTIAL LAW FOR LOUISIANA ENDED

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Martial law was ended unexpectedly here today by Governor O. K. Allen in a surprise move by administration forces of Senator Huey Long on the verge of the long-waited clash over a probe of November's referendum on constitutional amendments.

Recalling his proclamation which established martial law "to protect the grand jury," Governor Allen declared that the jury had held a meeting yesterday and had not been molested, leading him to the conclusion national guard protection no longer is necessary.

NORWALK UTILITY SUPERINTENDENT ORGANIZES OHIO CITIES ON UTILITY PROBLEMS

City's High Tax Rate Due to Health Board Forcing Erection of Expensive Sewage Disposal Plant

BY HENRY C. HAGLOCH.

One of the most notable municipal light plants in Ohio is that operated by the city of Norwalk, population 7,776 at the last census.

The plant is operated by M. G. Irvin as superintendent of utilities working under a service director. Mr. Irvin, who was one of the organizers of the Ohio association of city officials on public utility questions, has complete charge of the light plant and of its distribution and has charge of the municipal waterworks pumping plant but not of the water distribution system.

MAINTAINS LOW RATE

His light plant, apparently on a sound financial basis, maintains one of the cheapest rate schedules, outside of large cities, in Ohio. The following rates have been in effect since January 1, 1932:

Domestic—Five cents per k. w. h. for the first 20 kilowatt hours and four cents for the balance, with a minimum charge of 50 cents a month. The rate is billed, however, at six cents for the first 20 k. w. h. and five cents for the remainder, but is subject to a discount of one cent per kilowatt hour if paid on or before the 10th of each month.

Commercial (taking off the one cent discount)—Five cents per k. w. h. for the first 20 k. w. h., four cents per k. w. h. for the next 100, two cents for the next 1,600, and 1 1-2 cents per k. w. h. for the balance.

Power rate (taking off one cent discount)—Four cents per k. w. h for first 100, next 100 at three cents, next 500 at two cents, next 11,800 at 1 1-2 cents, balance at one cent.

The plant was started in 1914 with a $120,000 bond issue, of which $50,000 is still outstanding and due at the rate of $5,000 a year. In 1918 there was a $30,000 bond issue which was paid off by 1930. In 1921 there was another $30,000 bond issue paid off by 1931. In 1924 there was a $29,540 bond issue on which $14,000 is still outstanding and due at $2,000 a year.

Thus the total light plant bond issue to date has been $244,540 with $64,000 still outstanding.

The plant was appraised in 1926 at $383,182. It has been maintained and new equipment added out of earnings. A 1,500 K. W. turbine was installed since 1926 for $73,000, which was paid in cash and other items put the value of the plant near $500,000 at the present time, according to Mr. Irvin.

The plant at present has a steam turbine capacity of 3,000 K. W. The peak load is 1,300 K. W. Thus the plant has an ample reserve.

The 1932 revenue was $124,313 from receipts for 3,300,000 K. W. H. The actual generation was nearly 4,000,000. The 1932 operating costs were $80,330, exclusive of maturing bonds and interest which totalled $10,572.

PROVIDES LIGHTS

The plant furnishes free street lights estimated at $9,000 a year, and which city officials say would cost $14,000 at rates charged by some power companies.

The plant on June 1 had a balance or surplus, after meeting all costs and bonds and interest as they fall due, of $117,349.11, of which $69,224.11 was in cash and $48,125 in the form of investments.

The plant has 2,500 customers, including many small factories. The Ohio Power Co. is also in the city but does not have a large business.

Owing to an ingenious hook-up of line circuits serving the city, whereby any circuit can be fed from two directions, there has not not been an interruption of service since June, 1929.

Following is the light plant income in recent years: $135,598 in 1929, $136,724 in 1930, $133,706 in 1931, and $127,132 in 1932.

Expense for the same years: $105,180 in 1929, $100,875 in 1930, $88,510 in 1931, and $93,338 in 1932.

The water rates are 20 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons per quarter, the next 250,000 at 15 cents per 1,000, next 500,000 at 12 1-2 cents and the balance at 10 cents per 1,000 gallons. There is a further discount of 10 per cent if bills are paid within a specified time at the end of each quarter. The minimum charge is $1.50 a quarter, which permits use of 8,000 gallons of water.

FILTRATION NEEDED

Because of surface contamination from the reservoirs, the state board of health requires filtration and a $152,000 filtration plant was erected several years ago and is still in operation. The water is given treatment with lime, chlorine, alum, blue vitriol and other chemicals and is filtered through gravel and sand. A chemical testing laboratory is maintained in the plant.

The waterworks pumping station is in the light plant power house and steam and current from the light plant are used to operate

THIEVES ENTER CRITES STATION

Thieves broke a window and entered the Crites Filling station, Williamsport-pk, sometime late Tuesday or early Wednesday and stole 25 quarts of Kendall oil, and undetermined amounts of candy, cigars, tobacco, pop, razor blades and valve cores. George Crites, proprietor of the station, was unable to place a value on the goods stolen.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell is investigating the theft.

A CORRECTION

The item in 'Court News' in Tuesday's Herald which said "Negro Released" then referred to Allen 'Buck' Trego, well known local man as being freed from jail after arranging to pay a $5 intoxication fine, was erroneous.

The "Negro Released" line should have read, "Trego Released."

The Herald wishes to apologize to Mr. Trego for this mistake.

COUNCIL FIGHT ADDS FUEL TO CITY PRIMARY

Utility Issue Makes Next Tuesday's Election Interesting One

POLITICS QUIET

Campaigns Made by Only Few Candidates

Interest in Circleville's primary election, scheduled for next Tuesday, was increasing today after the dullest pre-election period in recent history. The warmest contest of the election is certain to be for various council seats, nearly every incumbent being opposed.

Little campaigning has been done. Numerous candidates, however, has been working quietly with the utility issue and municipal ownership possibly the most important question of the election.

Several candidates have printed on their campaign cards a platform embodying lower utility rates and some are advocating municipal ownership of utility plants. With city council on the verge of employing an engineer for a survey of electrical and water needs of the city, this question is foremost in the minds of candidates.

HEDGES HAS CONTEST

Mayor B. T. Hedges will have opposition at a primary for the first time in several years with Former Sheriff Frank Davis opposing him. Hedges is making no pre-primary statements but is working in his quiet but apparently effective manner. Davis is reported doing quiet campaigning.

The Democrats have placed only one candidate in the field, William B. Cady. This is possibly a precedent because it has been a long while since only one Democrat has tossed his hat into the ring for the mayor's job.

John C. Goeller, a strong advocate of municipal ownership of utilities, is unopposed for re-election to his seat.

Miss Lillian Young, auditor, and Lawrence J. Johnson, treasurer, are unopposed. Carl C. Leist, Democratic candidate for first term as city solicitor, is also unopposed. Paul E. Adkins, Democratic incumbent, is not running again and no Republican has entered the field.

COUNCIL-AT-LARGE

A warm contest is certain with three to be nominated by each party for councilmen at large.

Four candidates have filed for Democratic and four for Repub-

Crable was paroled from the workhouse where he was sent by Mayor B. T. Hedges for assault and battery of William Lowery, who later fatally shot Thomas B. Hill, Mrs. Crable's father. Lowery was exonerated on his plea of self defense, a revolver having been taken from Hill's hand after he was dead.

AUTO, TRUCK IN COLLISION

Triangle Farm Scene of Bad Accident; Several Treated At Hospital.

Six persons escaped serious injury at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday when the Essex sedan being driven north on the Scioto Trail by Max Winfough, of Five Points crashed into a truck parked in front of the Triangle farms, three and one-half miles south of Circleville.

The driver of the truck, Henry Stewart, 19, of Ashland, Ky., had stopped to make repairs. He was enroute to Cleveland to get a load of merchandise. He was accompanied by Royce Stewart, 23, and Jesse Evans, 39, both of Ashland, and Joseph Overby and Hazel Ziss, both of 103 E. Livingston-ave, Columbus, two 'hitch-hikers' who had been picked up near Lucasville.

Winfough told members of the sheriff's department that he did not see the truck. He was severely cut about the face.

The occupants of the truck also suffered cuts and bruises and all were brought to Berger hospital where their injuries were treated by Dr. D. V. Courtright.

Both the Essex sedan and the truck were badly damaged, the former being brought to the E. E. Clifton garage, this city, for repairs.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Another twist in fate was recorded Tuesday when Eddie Chapman, right-handed pitcher of the Rochester Red Wings, was purchased by the Washington Senators in first place in the American League.

Chapman had been the property of the Columbus Red Birds for several years prior to being sent to Rochester. It had always been our contention that Chapman was good enough for the Columbus team, or in fact for any team in the association. But opposition fired at him by Columbus' noble sportswriters was probably the chief reason why he was sent down the river time after time.

He was with Greensboro, N. C. in the Piedmont league last year on option from the Columbus aggregation and led all hurlers of that league in games and in the championship series pitched every one of Greensboro's victories to win the title. He also slammed the ball far and wide in his trips to the plate.

He was recalled by Columbus this spring and after looking good in early games was 'shinped.' He has been going well for Rochester and in looking around for a holster to his mound staff the Washington manager, Joe Cronin, picked on Chapman.

No one has ever doubted he has a world of stuff. He has always been wild but with Rochester seems to have overcome this handicap.

More power to the pitcher who made good despite unfavorable publicity.

Football's in the news again. Last week Miami university winner of the 1932 Buckeye association title, announced the players it has returning to school, and others are expected to follow soon. Miami will be plenty tough.

Attendance at recreation ball games has been excellent yea, verily, but the 'cash' dropped into the hat when it is circulated has been negligible. Many, many fans cannot afford to drop a nickle or dime into the fedora but many, many more who can, for some reason are 'looking out the window' when it is passed. The league must have money with which to buy recreation balls and the collection is the only way this money can be raised.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933, C.M.Co.

FLORIST'S ARTICLE PRAISES BREHMERS

The following article copied from "The Florist's Review" lauds the Brehmer Greenhouses, N. Court st.

FINDS THAT EFFORT PAYS

"Anyone who has driven along Ohio route 23, which runs through Columbus and Portsmouth, O., and on south, could not have failed to notice, while passing through Circleville, the attractive Brehmer greenhouse establishment. It consists of a range fronted with a conservatory and display room, as can be seen in the accompanying illustration. A neat interesting sign in front of the conservatory informs one of the firm name.

"R. L. Brehmer, who was formerly in the automobile business, has been proprietor of the establishment for a little over two years, during which time it has become one of the best known retail growing firms in that section of Ohio. This has been due to the fact that the owner has overlooked no opportunity to grow better stock through close contact with the floricultural department at the Ohio State University, Columbus, and also because of the efforts made to satisfy regular customers and to create new ones through modern advertising and sales methods. It should also be mentioned that school of design and short courses are invariably attended by some one from the establishment.

"In looking ahead with confidence, Mr. Brehmer saw fit to rearrange the greenhouse layout and to add the conservatory, which work was recently completed, producing the pleasing arrangement shown.

"Among garden plants, Golden Gleam nasturtiums have been featured by the Brehmer Greenhouses this season, with excellent results. By growing a few plants in the greenhouse, blooms were obtained early. A few of these flowers were sent out to customers with a note explaining the use of this nasturtium for porch box and trellis work. As a result, an enviable business on this item was worked up.

"Many other similar ideas are tried out from time to time by Mr. Brehmer, usually with excellent results. Florist visitors always receive a cordial welcome at the Brehmer Greenhouses, so if you are near, drop in."

Feverish Activity Marks NRA Campaign

Led by their dynamic chairman, General Hugh S. Johnson, the staff of the National Recovery Administration is working day and night in the Commerce Building, Washington, to put over the biggest peace time drive in history. The program is to put 5,000,000 unemployed into jobs by Labor Day. Hundreds of new workers are being added to the NRA staff and experts who took part in the Liberty Loan campaigns during the World War have been enlisted in this war on depression. Charles T. Coiner, designer of the NRA cooperator's emblem, already nationally known, is at work on other posters advertising the drive.

SCOUTS ENJOY INTERESTING OUTING AT DISTRICT'S CAMP

Twenty-three members of the troop went to Camp Lazarus July 24. The camp, which is owned and operated by the Central Ohio Area Council, is located approximately twenty miles north of Columbus.

Daily inspection was held by Dr. L. C. Gerlinger. The Iroquois (107's) village received a grade of 97 3-7 percent for the entire grading period. The staff cabin was high. The troop, under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster George A. Leist, introduced a new and much more picturesque method of retreat (lowering of the flag), which was held daily at 6 p. m.

Swimming was held daily at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Instruction was given daily to beginners, life saving classes and canoeing classes.

Friday night the troop held a flag fight with troop 101 of Marysville, which was encamped just across a ravine in the Sioux village. Troop 107 got all of 101's flag, while 101 got only part of 107's. Thus 107 was victorious.

Saturday night nine members of the troop were initiated. Sports that were enjoyed by the scouts were baseball, volleyball, wrestling and various games.

Mr. Packard, manager of the local bowling alleys, has offered each scout who attended camp, two free games of duck pins, which must be played sometime this week.

The camp staff was K. A. Connelly, director; Mr. Jameson and B. Wiltberger, swimming directors; Norman Armstrong, trader; and George A. Leist, troop leader.

Tests passed at camp were as follows: One merit badge for Junior Red Cross Life Saving Service, one merit badge for canoeing training, and three merit badges for swimming efficiency. Twenty-six tests were passed by tenderfoot, second, and first class scouts.

Scout Edward Howell and Mr. Leist received the only two injuries, Howell's being an injured nose and Leist's, a torn muscle under the lower rib.

Transportation was furnished by Mrs. N. T. Weldon, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, C. T. Gilmore, J. M. Bell, D. L. Buchanan, Sterling Lamb, Charles Goeller, and Bishop Hill.

The Kiwanis club, sponsors of the troop, through its committee, J. E. Goeller, E. H. Rausenberger, and G. R. Geib, made the necessary arrangements for the camping period.

The scouts who returned July 31 were Robert Anderson, Joseph Bell, Jack Brown, Lewis Cooper, Horace Gilmore, Ned Harden, Edward Howell, Clark Hunsicker, David Jackson, Hildeburn Jones, Richard Moon, Philip Moore, Charles Mowery, William Rader, George Roth, Robert Scott, David Steinhauser, Robert Ward, Richard Weldon, William Weldon, John Robinson, Arthur Rooney, George Wharton, and Assistant Scoutmaster George A. Leist.

There will be a Pickaway-co Court of Review held Aug. 25 for those who passed tests at camp.

The troop is to do civic service duty at the air day meet being held today.

RELIGIOUS DRAMA WILL BE STAGED

Tonight another religious drama will be given at Memorial Hall in connection with the evangelistic crusade which is in progress there under auspices of the local Church of Christ. The drama title "Lost and Found" will be given by the following persons which make up the cast. Mary Ruth Noggle, Lucile NewlunETAOIN..N..N... Luciele Newlun, Owen M. Walker and Mrs. Owen M. Walker.

Rev. Small will bring another stirring sermon. A delegation is expected from Columbus to be present at the service tonight.

The service last night was perhaps the most far reaching of any thus far in that the singing of the children was unusually fine and the response to the invitation was generous, five coming out to begin the Christian life. Yesterday three were baptized and this afternoon several others will receive the ordinance.

Services begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

the pumps. A charge is made against the water department by the light plant for this service and one light plant engineer gets his salary from the water department.

One engineer and one fireman operate the light-water plant, exclusive of the filtration plant, by night and one engineer, one fireman and a helper by day. There is a chief engineer who is subject to call day or night.

The boiler plant includes two large Sterling type boilers operating at 175 pounds pressure and superheat is at 150 degrees. The plant includes a surface condenser.

Coal costs $3.15 a ton delivered at the plant, including $2.45 a ton freight, the coal itself costing only 55 cents.

Norwalk has a high tax rate, which apparently, however, cannot be charged to its public utilities. The total rate for 1932 was 26 mills and the municipal tax was 8.8 mills, compared with a total of 19.30 for 1932 for Circleville and a municipal rate of only 7 mills.

One of the big factors in the Norwalk tax rate is the building of a $225,000 sewage disposal plant, which only recently has been put into operation. The plant was forced by the state health department to clear up a bad case of stream pollution to which farmers and land owners over a wide area had objected.

At the time the sewer bonds were voted the city voted for a total bond issue of $475,000 to include extension of sewer lines.

The next article will include some figures on municipal plants at Troy, East Palestine and St. Marys.

RAILROAD URGES CAREFUL DRIVING

N. & W. Spends More Than $700,000 For Wigwags, Other Protection.

The Norfolk and Western Railway has spent more than $700,000 for wigwag signals and other highway grade crossing protection on its line, according to a statement being published by the railroad in newspapers in its territory. In spite of these "advertisements of danger," the statement says, 18 per cent of all grade crossing accidents on the railroad during 1932 were due to automobiles being driven into the sides of trains, and 143 automobiles were driven through and broke down N. & W. crossing gates which has been lowered to protect them against approaching trains.

To solve this serious problem, it is pointed out, the railroads have done, and are doing, more than their part. "But," the statement continues, "the railways alone cannot solve it. It is essentially the problem of the automobile driver, and the public. Automobile drivers and others can entirely avoid highway grade crossing accidents by using even the most ordinary care—by heeding that unmistakable warning signal—the railroad's 'advertisement of danger'."

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

A Slight Misunderstanding

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE ambitious citizens of a certain English city were giving a pageant commemorate of the ancient history of the community—the Roman invasion, life among the Saxons, the coming of the Normans, the habits and customs of the early Britons, all of it. Pains were taken to insure proper costuming of the characters typical of each succeeding period, and the people of the countryside were impressed as supernumeraries, the principal parts being taken by hired performers.

But the weather marred the success of the affair. It was raw and cold and rainy. Late in the afternoon two lady visitors came upon a shivering bare-legged individual clad in a short tunic, with a skimpy purple cloak swinging from his shoulders, a sword girded about his middle, sandals on his feet and a helmet upon his despondent head.

"Oh," cried out one of them, "you must be Appius Claudius!"

"No mum," said the stranger. "I'm un'appy as 'ell!"

Secret

Jim Farley hugely enjoyed Senator Huey Long's hurried trip to Washington to see who had kicked over his patronage fences. Roosevelt's big amiable chief patronage dispenser not only has the Kingfish worried, but also mystified.

Huey has been laying all his patronage troubles to Colonel John Sullivan, prominent New Orleans sportsman, politician, and bitter anti-Long leader. But Farley told Huey he was all wet, that while Farley and Sullivan were warm friends, and good brother Elks, Farley was not getting his patronage advice from Sullivan.

"Then who is it?" Huey demanded.

"That's a secret," replied Farley, grinning from ear to ear.

At Last

The Treasury has very quietly instituted some sweeping changes in its procedure in reopening closed and restricted banks.

Until recently the initiative for such action was up to bank officials. The Comptroller of the Currency waited in his Washington office until plans were submitted. Then he would act.

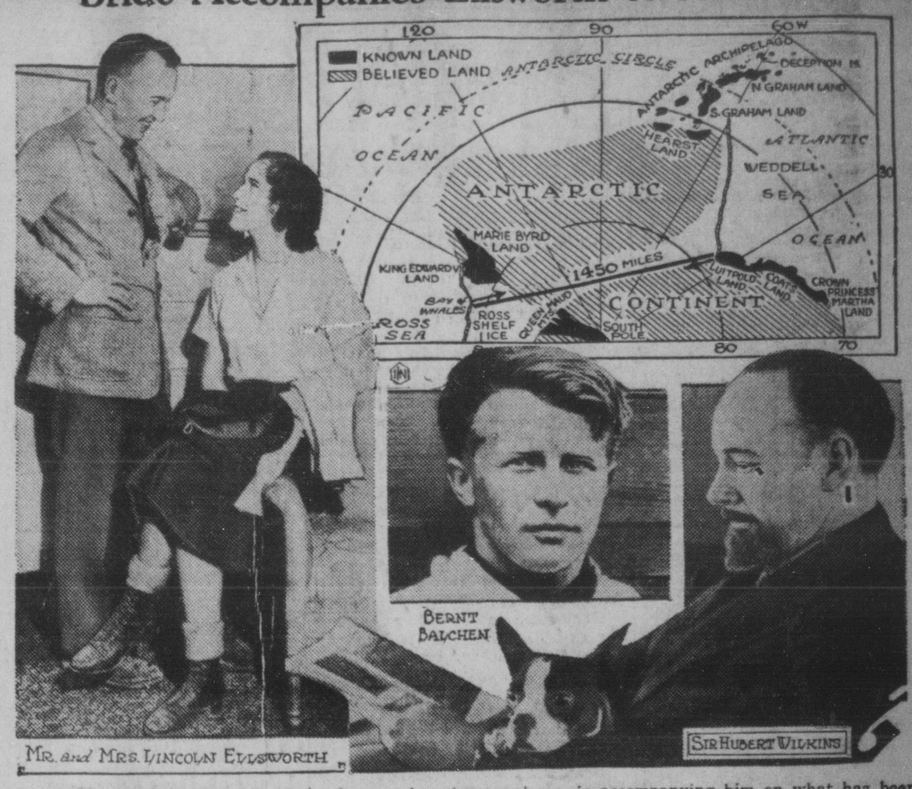

There was some progress in rehabilitating the thousands of 'frozen' banks; but it was slow and not very promising. Billions of depositors' money were tied up, with no immediate prospect of its being released for many months.

The President decided that speed was needed. The frozen billions, if put into circulation, would aid enormously his recovery plan. Also, there was widespread criticism over the way the closed banks were being handled by the Treasury.

So orders secretly went out from the White House several weeks ago to "step on it." Now the Treasury, not the bank officials, is taking the initiative in the proceedings.

Ellsworth, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Bernt Balchen will explore by air and dog team the 1,450 miles between Ross Sea and Wedell Sea. Balchen, who piloted Admiral Byrd's plane over the South Pole, will fly the plane while Ellsworth acts as observer and Wilkins as photographer. Mrs. Ellsworth will remain at the Bay of Whales base with eight others of the expedition's personnel. The expedition will sail from New Zealand about November first and plans call for a return in May of next year.

August in the Country

ABOVE the almost imperceptible hum of the season the locust is languorously buzzing. It it August. The ecstacy has gone out of things. The fledglings in one late nest of chipping sparrows keep up an intermittent chatter in the syringa bush under the window. But most of the neighborhood birds are foot-loose again. Bobolinks and orioles have been silent so long that you can hardly remember how gloriously they sang in May and June. But the song sparrow still keeps up his spirits, the Maryland yellowthroat still prattles of witcheries in the raspberry patch and sometimes the catbird has something sententious to say. Now that the swallows are hatched they are perching in long, contemplative rows on the telegraph wires. The blue jay who kept mightly quiet while his children were young, is beginning to trumpet and bluster again. In the morning, and evening the bluebird recovers his cotnralto warble of good-will.

The haze is fairly constant over the mountains, turning every view into a landscape, and lurks deep and blue in the valleys. In fields where the hay is still uncut, goldenrod, Queen Anne's lace and St. Johnswort begin to take full charge. The sun is a living ball of fire. If you cross a mown field the heat ripples up all around you; close your eyes and you have a sensation of rising. But it is cool and moist in the woods, and it is tranquil under the hemlocks. Where the sun leaks through the canopy of spires and branches it falls to the soft ground in pools of bluish light. For the light in hemlock groves is filtered; the glare and blaze are removed.

Any one can understand that it is unnatural to work in such weather. Nature is making little effort now. There is no longer a sense of expectancy. All during the day there are long interludes of silence. The throb of a motor straining on the hill, the purr of a mowing-machine, a threatening "ho" flung at the horses in the hayfield a mile away, a dog's bark in some sleepy dooryard are the only variations in the great symphony of quiet. Even the locust is no more than the season's overtone.

The Promenade

A CONTEMPORARY writer bewails the passing of the old custom of "promenading" on pleasant evenings, and wishes that it might be restored. There is a reason in his plea.

Not so long ago, twilight in almost every community found groups of people—nice people—strolling quietly along the streets, stopping to chat with other groups and combining social intercourse, mild after-dinner exercise and enjoyment of the best part of the day in a fashion as inexpensive as it was charming and conducive to, health and neighborliness. As the champion of the promenade points out, it is a pity that the fashion of tearing about in motor cars with little result but the exhaustion of purse and nervous energy has so completely superseded this calmer method of enjoyment. "Use your legs," he urges. "It is cheaper than riding and more restful of mind and body."

Those who have the courage to adopt his suggestion and leave the car standing in the garage for a few nights while they promenade, unhonked and unhonking, in the peaceful twlight, will find that he is right.

"MARY FAITH"
by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXIX

"What's the matter with him," Kim's mother remarked frequently.

"What can be wrong?" Mary Faith asked herself a hundred times a day. "What have I done, or left undone?"

And she knew that it was nothing she had done or had not done that was responsible for Kim's behavior. She knew that he was bored and out of love with her once more, just as he had been before. Well, he had always come back to her, hadn't he?

"What's the matter with him? He acts as if this place was a boarding house," his mother remarked frequently. "I declare, he runs around almost as much now as he did before he was married."

And so things went until the fifteenth of March.

Mary Faith was always to remember that day because of the three things that happened on it.

The baby made a whole sentence that day, "I see birdie." Mrs. Farrell announced that she was going to be married to Dr. Thatcher the next morning. And Kim broke the news that he intended to leave his wife.

The day started out beautifully, with sunshine and blue sky and everything going on in the flat just as usual.

A little after ten Mrs. Farrell started on her weekly search for bargains. She did this every Friday and returned at nightfall, loaded with toys for the baby, dish-towels that left lint all over the dishes, mayonnaise mixers that refused to work.

"Say 'bye-bye' to Nana," she said, kissing little Kim good-bye. She never spoke of herself as "Grandmother."

"Bye," said the baby, and went on playing with his string of spools.

"Now, isn't it wonderful—the way he says that, Mary Faith! Kimberley walked and talked long before he was two years old, and this baby is as smart as he was!" She never gave Mary Faith any credit for producing a beautiful and precocious child.

"Hold him up to the window, Mary Faith, so he can wave goodbye to his Nana," she said, opening the front door.

But the baby had no eyes for her departing figure when Mary Faith held him up to the window. He went into raptures over two sparrows on the sidewalk, and it was then that he spoke the sentence that Mary Faith interpreted as "I see birdie."

She tried to make him say it again, but he struggled to get out of her arms and back to his beloved spools. But Mary Faith was positive, nevertheless, that he had said those three little words. Late that afternoon, when the flat was in order and dinner was under way, she sat down to make an entry to that effect in his silk-covered baby book. She began to write: "This morning the baby put three words together to make a sentence——" She had reached that point when she heard the sound of Kim's car, and she flung down her pen and started up from her chair.

Long afterward she was to open the book and find that unfinished entry, trailing a long streak of ink after it, like a dark cloud; and the very sight was to bring back the vivid and aching memory of this March afternoon—the yellow glow of the sun in the room, the smell of the geraniums on the window sills, the sound of the vestibule door slamming, and Kim's footsteps on the stairs outside.

It was only five o'clock. Kim hadn't come home as early as this in months! Mary Faith was glad that she had just changed into a clean house dress of horizon-blue cotton crepe—the color that "set off" her blue eyes. The hope that had warmed her heart for months flared up once again as Kim stepped into the room. The hope that on one of these nights he would come home and be his old self—the companionable contented Kim of last spring and of last summer, instead of the sulky and remote man who had come and gone like a paying guest all these past ten weeks.

He came in, and as she looked at his face her hopes died. It was hard and cold as if the regular beauty of it had been chiseled out of stone.

"Hello, Kim," she said.

"Hello." He did not look at her or at the baby, who was trying to reach the geranium blossoms on the window sill.

Then he walked out of the room. She heard him go down the hall to his own room and close the door.

A moment later he came back.

"Where's my mother?"

Mary Faith smiled. "This is her bargain day. She's still downtown."

Mrs. Farrell's passion for bargains had always been the source of much good-natured joking in the family. But now Kim saw no humor in Mary Faith's report of his mother's shopping.

His face was as hard as flint as he sat down by the sitting room fire and bit the end from a cigar.

"I'm glad she not here—I want to talk to you," he said, and something in his tone made Mary Faith feel shaky and sick. That was the way he talked when he came to Mrs. Puckett's house to tell her that he did not want to marry her, it was the way he had come home one night, almost two years ago, to tell her that he was going to leave her.

What was he going to tell her now? she wondered.

"What is it you want to tell me, Kim?" Mary Faith heard herself ask steadily. But her lower lip quivered as she drew back her breath and one hand grasped the edge of the mantel shelf, as if she were bracing herself. Before he spoke a word, she knew what he was going to say.

"I won't go on like this any longer," was what he did say, after a pause that seemed like eternity itself to her. "This business of living like two strangers under the same roof may be all right for you, but I expect something more than that from life."

If they had been living like two strangers for the last three months, it was his fault, not hers. She tried to say so, but her throat seemed to have knotted itself all at once so that she was unable to speak a word. She stood staring at Kim and slowly shaking her head.

He went on:

"When two people reach the point where they realize that they've lost interest in each other, the only decent and moral thing for them to do is to part company. Lots of people do it. There's no disgrace in a divorce any more, and not much difficulty. You can stay right on here with my mother and the baby, and I'll send you your housekeeping money every week."

Evidently he had been making his plans for a long time, for he seemed to have all the details worked out.

"You've heard me speak of Morris Gill—fraternity brother of mine? Well, he has a law-office across the hall from our office downtown. You'd better go down to see him in a few days and he'll fix everything up for you. Alimony and so on, I mean. I've told him I'm perfectly willing to turn over to you half of what I make."

Kim stopped then and looked at Mary Faith, clearly waiting for her to make some sort of answer. But she simply stood looking at him, silent and perplexed, with a look of pain in her deep eyes.

How could he come to her like this and casually tell her that he was through with her, tired of their marriage? How could he suggest that all he had to do was to pay her off, month by month, as if she were a pensioner, and that that would settle whatever debt he owed her and the baby? He was cruel and indifferent. She realized that, but it did not alter her love a bit, or lessen it.

"Jack and Claire Maldon have split up, and all she's taking is a third of Jack's salary," she heard him say. "She says she doesn't intend to make him pay through the nose all his life for the mistake they made in getting married. You don't expect more than half of my salary, do you?"

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THEY tell all kinds of things on themselves in some of these divorce cases. The one that tells sometimes gets the worse than the one the telling is done on.

In Kansas City there was a girl that wasn't much of a housekeeper that had a flop of a marriage, and she sued her husband for divorce. He then sued her, and they went to court to tell it all. She said he had a terrible temper, and the lawyer told her to give examples.

"Well, one morning at breakfast, while he was eating corn flakes, he didn't like the food and he foamed at the mouth and yelled at me.'

"Was that true," says the lawyer to him after a while, "what she told about breakfast?"

"Why, yes, almost. Only it was as much her fault as it was mine that I foamed at the mouth. You see, she gave me soap flakes instead of corn flakes."

AT THE GRAND

An unusual record of achievement forms the background of Sam Taylor, director of Universal's clever comedy, "Out All Night," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday with Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts in the starring roles.

Among the outstanding productions directed by Taylor during past years were "The Freshman" and "Girl Shy," with Harold Lloyd, "My Best Girl," "Coquette" and "Kiki," starring Mary Pickford, "The Taming of the Shrew," with Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, "Lady of the Pavements," "Du Barry" and many others.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The warm, alluring femininity of the nautch dancer is captured by Constance Bennett in the unusual costume she dons for the Mardi Gras carnival scenes in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Bed of Roses," at the Cliftona theatre, today and Thursday.

Her elaborate attire makes Miss Bennett look especially glamorous. The skirt is of transparent light blue silk trimmed with dark blue velvet and silver spangles. Over this she wears a ravishing blue and silver bolero. Miss Bennett covers the lower part of her face with a blue and silver chiffon veil, and also wears heavy oriental jewelry of carved silver.

Child Should be Given Good Example by Mother

Perils of Placing Objects in Mouth Cannot Be Overemphasized, Avers Doctor

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

HOW OFTEN have you heard a mother scold a child for putting objects in his mouth? Yet, the same mother sets a bad example by placing pins and other small objects in her own mouth. This is an unfortunate practice because children learn to do things by imitation.

Dr. Copeland

If a mother keeps pins in her mouth when mending or dressing, the child imitates her. The youngster places a pin in her mouth when playing with her doll. Too many accidents can be traced to this habit.

Another danger is to give a baby a button or small toy that can be easily swallowed. It is amazing to learn of the various objects that children swallow. Bits of jewelry, pins, coins, marbles, foods, such as dry beans, coffee grains and kernels of corn, are a few of the many objects swallowed by children.

The perils involved in this accident cannot be overemphasized. The swallowed object may become lodged in the upper air passage and obstruct the breathing. Many cases of asphyxiation have occurred as a result of this accident.

Some Dangers

The object may become fixed in the lower part of the windpipe, leading to irritation and infection of the lungs. A swallowed pin may reach the stomach and pass to the intestines. The sharp point of the pin sometimes ruptures or lacerates the intestinal lining.

Never allow a child to play with, or to be near, pins, buttons, nuts, marbles or any small object which he can pick up and put in his mouth But if the child swallows a foreign body, do not become excited.

Above all, do not pound the victim on the back, for this may interfere with his expelling the object. If you are not sure whether he has swallowed the object, do not put your fingers into his mouth and throat. You may push it down farther.

If the object has disappeared and the little victim does not complain of any pain or discomfort, do not assume that there is no need for alarm. It is possible that he has swallowed it and the object has reached the intestine or is lodged in some part of the lung. This can only be determined by an X-ray picture and it is imperative that this be taken.

Bronchoscope

Fortunately, medical science is now equipped with an instrument that can detect and make possible the removal of swallowed foreign bodies. It is called the "bronchoscope". It is passed down the throat and, by means of a series of bulbs and lenses, the physician is able to locate and remove objects from the throat, windpipe or bronchi of the lungs. "Bronchoscopy," which is the name given this procedure, has saved the lives of many children and prevented many serious complications.

Though swallowing foreign objects is a common occurrence in children, this accident is sometimes encountered in adults. Here it is due to carelessness, and especially to hasty eating and improper chewing of food. Chew your food slowly and carefully and pick the bones out of the fish before swallowing. An impacted fish bone is a painful and dangerous thing to catch in the throat.

Miss Warner To Wed Oral Storts Sept. 1

Announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Leola Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Warner, E. Main-st, to Mr. Oral Storts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Storts, of Canal Winchester was made at a delightful party given by the bride-elect at her home, Tuesday evening.

The marriage will be an event of Friday, Sept. 1, at the St. Paul Evangelical church near Stoutsville with Rev. C. W. Wendell officating.

Mr. Storts is a graduate of the Canal Winchester high school and is a painting contractor.

Garden flowers decorated the home for the delightful announcement party and an artistically arranged bowl of flowers was an attractive centerpiece for the table where a delicious lunch was served at the close of the pleasant hours. Yellow and white were predominant in the table decorations. The announcement was revealed by clever place cards.

substitute taxation program, recently passed, sounded warning today that he will oppose the sales tax "to the bitter end."

Similar opposition was declared by Senator William H. Herner (D) of Norwalk, chairman of the Senate finance committee.

Governor White's sales tax proposal, it is understood, would call for repeal of the beer, amusement, cosmetic and "liquid fuel" taxes in the Gunsett-Whittemore substitute program.

Unless the governor changes his plans, the sales tax proposal will suggest a 2 per cent rate, the same as was in his original bill.

Carlton Dargusch, youngest member of the tax commission; Major E. O. Braught, 29-year-old state relief supervisor; Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson; Grover Maxwell, Columbus lawyer, and Prof. Clarence Laylin, of Ohio State university, are understood to have drawn up the alternative program.

The members of these boards, nine on each state board and seven on each district board, were drafted for their duties, and were organizing while awaiting further instructions.

Firms sending in pledges are predominantly local in scope, though not necessarily small concerns, the reports reveal. Reservoirs of mass employment opportunities, especially the big utility companies, with their national ramifications, are not acting very rapidly.

Johnson today frankly admitted he was not cheered by the way in which these major concerns had responded to date. Nevertheless, he said he had before him approximately 680 permanent codes of as many industries or business groups, aside from the thousands of blanket agreements being poured in hourly.

The Ohio board includes C. A. Dver and Thomas J. Donnelly, both of Columbus; Ralph Perkins of Cleveland; Col. C. A. Sherrill and Wiliam Doepke of Cincinnati; Paul W. Litchfield of Akron; C. F. Ackerman of Mansfield; Herbert A. Jones of Jamestown, and John Ahlers of Dayton.

Thirteen persons died yesterday in the New York area, the mercury climbing to 95 degrees and giving New Yorkers the third hottest day of the year.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT KIRWIN.

WHY the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., called its famous cigarette product, CAMEL?

Several persons have attempted to tell me about the origin of this name, but none of the explanations have been definite, and I've been struggling along in the dark for several years. The other day I wrote Mr. S. Clay Williams, president of the concern which makes "Camels" and asked him to solve the mystery. He has very kindly acquiesced and I trust that the readers of this column will enjoy as much as I have, his enlightening remarks. Here is what he has to say:

" 'Old Joe,' the famous old camel which for years was one of the main attractions of the Barnum and Bailey circus, was the original of the well-known trade-mark printed on each package of Camel cigarettes.

'Although 'Old Joe' died a premature death in a railroad wreck at Bridgeport, Conn., several years ago, his profile on the Camel cigarette package is well known in all parts of the world.

"Camel cigarettes were first marketed in the fall of 1913. The blend had been decided upon, and it had been agreed that the new cigarettes should be called Camel, and that the picture of a camel should adorn the package in which the new cigarettes were to be sold."

"Right at this psychological time, the Barnum and Bailey circus played in Winston-Salem, N. C., where Camel cigarettes are made by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Circus day in the South is an event, and employees of the R. J. Reynolds factories were released for the day so they could attend the circus.

"One employee, now an important official of the company, saw 'Old Joe' and realized that a picture of this old camel would make an ideal trade-mark for the new Camel cigarette, just about to be marketed. Going to an official of the circus, he asked permission to photograph 'Old Joe.'

" 'We haven't got time for such foolishness,' replied the circus man.

"Then it was explained that the R. J. Reynolds factories had released all employees so that they could see the circus. The least the circus could do, it was argued, would be to permit a photograph of one of its animals."

"So, after the circus parade that day, one of the animal trainers led 'Old Joe' to a nearby hillside, and the picture was taken. 'Old Joe,' however, was a curious camel, and was fascinated by the photographer and his camera, and insisted upon turning his head and watching every move made by the photographer.

"Finally, the trainer slapped 'Old Joe's' face and told him to turn around. 'Old Joe' threw his head into the air in an offended manner, closed his eyes, and raised his tail, much like a cat humps its back when angry. Just then the photographer 'shot' the picture.

"That is why, if you will look carefully on a package of Camel cigarettes, you will see the camel with his eyes shut and his tail rigid."

Hull Wants to Know Whether He or Moley Is Secretary of State

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Those returning from the London Conference say that the mountaineer jaw of Secretary Cordell Hull is set like that of his Tennessee father, reputed to have taken ten years to "get his man."

Hull's man in this case is Professor Raymond Moley, his assistant secretary of state. Many things contributed to Hull's ire against Moley, but the latest one to leak out is the story of the London stabilization negotiations.

Moley, newly arrived in London, sailed into the conversations with vim. He conferred with the gold bloc countries over their plan of semi-stabilization — to prevent fluctuation of currencies — and approved it. At one of these conferences, he called up Hull on the telephone:

"Will you come over to No. 10 Downing Street and initial this stabilization agreement, Mr. Secretary?" he asked.

"What stabilization agreement?" replied Hull. "I have no authority to approve a stabilization agreement."

"Oh, it's all right," said Moley, "I have the O. K. of the President."

The conference waited for two days for that O. K. The French finance minister postponed his return to France. The delegates stayed up nights. Even Moley got nervous.

Finally the message came. It was the most bluntly worded rebuff received by any recent international conference.

So Cordell Hull is returning determined to find out who is to be Secretary of State.—he or Moley?

Diplomatic Duel

A bitter under-cover war is taking place between career diplomats and the politicians for the choice political plums in the Diplomatic Service.

Jim Farley is leading one faction. Billy Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, the other. Recently the battle raged around the American Minister to Jugoslavia. Farley wanted the appointment of Julia Woodruff Wheelock, New York widow. Phillips wanted Charlie Wilson, a career man who had been ousted from Rumania when Roosevelt appointed a protege of Senator Sheppard to that post. Finally Phillips won. Wilson got the job.

More recently the fight has been over the Ambassadorship to Chile. Farley has put forward Sproulle Braden, son of the copper king, heavy contributor to the Democratic campaign fund. Phillips has out forward George T. Summerlin career diplomat of Rayville, La., now minister to Venezuela.

Summerlin has spent his life in the service, has a colorless record, seldom does anything for fear of making mistakes. But Branden's apointment is resented by many Chileans because of the big copper interests his father had in Chile.

Neither one is a brilliant appointment.

Aged in the Wood?

Dr. James W. Doran, head of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, is having many callers these days seeking approval of formulas and methods for quick aging of whiskey. The impending repeal of the 18th Amendment has set distillers on a world-wide search for a solution of the problem of aging without age.

So far Doran has had no formula submitted that equals the centuries-old process of aging in the wood. Discussing the matter the other day he recalled an incident in the early days of his revenue service.

"We had a case of moonshining down in the Appalachian mountain," Doran related. "The issue was over the age of the liquor. One old mountaineer was called as a witness by the defense, as a man who could tell the difference between green and aged whiskey. The government counsel asked

MANY WITNESSES

State to Charge Miller, Cramer Agreement

Introduction of testimony was started in the trial of L. E. Miller, Watt-st, former city service director, before Judge J. W. Adkins in common pleas court when the afternoon session opened at 1 o'clock Wednesday.

A jury was selected in record time Wednesday morning and court adjourned until 1 p. m. as none of the witnesses was subpoenaed until that time.

Mr. Miller is charged with being personally interested in transactions for the city during his term as service director following revelations of State Examiner Beverly. He was indicted by the grand jury sometime ago.

Over 25 witnesses are expected to testify in the case, 24 already having been subpoenaed.

The jury includes 10 men and two women and is composed of Mrs. John Bell, Mrs. Anna Wing, F. M. Stout, Ara Crawford, J. M. Dountz, W. B. Grabill, Harry Dresbach, William H. Hulse, Carnual Rasor, George Betts, Sr., George C. Griffith and Harley Walston.

GUILT DENIED

Mr. Miller entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment preceding the opening of the trial. In his opening statements, Prosecutor Ray Davis said that the state expected to show that Mr. Miller, employing Harry Cramer, a blacksmith, entered into agreements with Cramer to split the profits on jobs performed for the city of Circleville. Mr. Cramer was employed in the blacksmith shop in the rear of Mr. Miller's home, Watt-st.

Powerful Machine, Similar To Scotland Yard, Believed Underway.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 2.—A new and powerful governmental machine, built to grind out the social flotsam behind a recent wave of kidnaping and gangster outrages, was seen today as the probable product of a conference between President Roosevelt and his assistant secretary of state, Raymond Moley.

Neither the president nor Moley has affirmed or denied reports that such a unit was to be set up. On the other hand, Moley, who spent several hours with the president, did reveal he has given such an organizatoin, described as a sort of super-Scotland yard for this country, considerable thought. He called on Mr. Roosevelt at "Krum Elbow," the president's estate here, where he is vacationing for ten days.

In this connection, Attorney General Cummings earlier revealed that he has done some work toward planning an organization of this sort. The president, Moley, known as the head of the executives so-called "brain trust" of advisers,

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Martial law was ended unexpectedly here today by Governor O. K. Allen in a surprise move by administration forces of Senator Huey Long on the verge of the long-waited clash over a probe of November's referendum on constitutional amendments.

Recalling his proclamation which established martial law "to protect the grand jury," Governor Allen declared that the jury had held a meeting yesterday and had not been molested, leading him to the conclusion national guard protection no longer is necessary.

NORWALK UTILITY SUPERINTENDENT ORGANIZES OHIO CITIES ON UTILITY PROBLEMS

City's High Tax Rate Due to Health Board Forcing Erection of Expensive Sewage Disposal Plant

BY HENRY C. HAGLOCH.

One of the most notable municipal light plants in Ohio is that operated by the city of Norwalk, population 7,776 at the last census.

The plant is operated by M. G. Irvin as superintendent of utilities working under a service director. Mr. Irvin, who was one of the organizers of the Ohio association of city officials on public utility questions, has complete charge of the light plant and of its distribution and has charge of the municipal waterworks pumping plant but not of the water distribution system.

MAINTAINS LOW RATE

His light plant, apparently on a sound financial basis, maintains one of the cheapest rate schedules, outside of large cities, in Ohio. The following rates have been in effect since January 1, 1932:

Domestic—Five cents per k. w. h. for the first 20 kilowatt hours and four cents for the balance, with a minimum charge of 50 cents a month. The rate is billed, however, at six cents for the first 20 k. w. h. and five cents for the remainder, but is subject to a discount of one cent per kilowatt hour if paid on or before the 10th of each month.

Commercial (taking off the one cent discount)—Five cents per k. w. h. for the first 20 k. w. h., four cents per k. w. h. for the next 100, two cents for the next 1,600, and 1 1-2 cents per k. w. h. for the balance.

Power rate (taking off one cent discount)—Four cents per k. w. h for first 100, next 100 at three cents, next 500 at two cents, next 11,800 at 1 1-2 cents, balance at one cent.

The plant was started in 1914 with a $120,000 bond issue, of which $50,000 is still outstanding and due at the rate of $5,000 a year. In 1918 there was a $30,000 bond issue which was paid off by 1930. In 1921 there was another $30,000 bond issue paid off by 1931. In 1924 there was a $29,540 bond issue on which $14,000 is still outstanding and due at $2,000 a year.

Thus the total light plant bond issue to date has been $244,540 with $64,000 still outstanding.

The plant was appraised in 1926 at $383,182. It has been maintained and new equipment added out of earnings. A 1,500 K. W. turbine was installed since 1926 for $73,000, which was paid in cash and other items put the value of the plant near $500,000 at the present time, according to Mr. Irvin.

The plant at present has a steam turbine capacity of 3,000 K. W. The peak load is 1,300 K. W. Thus the plant has an ample reserve.

The 1932 revenue was $124,313 from receipts for 3,300,000 K. W. H. The actual generation was nearly 4,000,000. The 1932 operating costs were $80,330, exclusive of maturing bonds and interest which totalled $10,572.

PROVIDES LIGHTS

The plant furnishes free street lights estimated at $9,000 a year, and which city officials say would cost $14,000 at rates charged by some power companies.

The plant on June 1 had a balance or surplus, after meeting all costs and bonds and interest as they fall due, of $117,349.11, of which $69,224.11 was in cash and $48,125 in the form of investments.

The plant has 2,500 customers, including many small factories. The Ohio Power Co. is also in the city but does not have a large business.

Owing to an ingenious hook-up of line circuits serving the city, whereby any circuit can be fed from two directions, there has not not been an interruption of service since June, 1929.

Following is the light plant income in recent years: $135,598 in 1929, $136,724 in 1930, $133,706 in 1931, and $127,132 in 1932.

Expense for the same years: $105 180 in 1929, $100,875 in 1930, $88,510 in 1931, and $93,338 in 1932.

The water rates are 20 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons per quarter, the next 250,000 at 15 cents per 1,000, next 500,000 at 12 1-2 cents and the balance at 10 cents per 1,000 gallons. There is a further discount of 10 per cent if bills are paid within a specified time at the end of each quarter. The minimum charge is $1.50 a quarter, which permits use of 8,000 gallons of water.

FILTRATION NEEDED

Because of surface contamination from the reservoirs, the state board of health requires filtration and a $152,000 filtration plant was erected several years ago and is still in operation. The water is given treatment with lime, chlorine, alum, blue vitriol and other chemicals and is filtered through gravel and sand. A chemical testing laboratory is maintained in the plant.

The waterworks pumping station is in the light plant power house and steam and current from the light plant are used to operate

THIEVES ENTER CRITES STATION

Thieves broke a window and entered the Crites Filling station, Williamsport-pk, sometime late Tuesday or early Wednesday and stole 25 quarts of Kendall oil, and undetermined amounts of candy, cigars, tobacco, pop, razor blades and valve cores. George Crites, proprietor of the station, was unable to place a value on the goods stolen.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell is investigating the theft.

A CORRECTION

The item in 'Court News' in Tuesday's Herald which said "Negro Released" then referred to Allen 'Buck' Trego, well known local man as being freed from jail after arranging to pay a $5 intoxication fine, was erroneous.

The "Negro Released" line should have read, "Trego Released."

The Herald wishes to apologize to Mr. Trego for this mistake.

COUNCIL FIGHT ADDS FUEL TO CITY PRIMARY

Utility Issue Makes Next Tuesday's Election Interesting One

POLITICS QUIET

Campaigns Made by Only Few Candidates

Interest in Circleville's primary election, scheduled for next Tuesday, was increasing today after the dullest pre-election period in recent history. The warmest contest of the election is certain to be for various council seats, nearly every incumbent being opposed.

Little campaigning has been done. Numerous candidates, however, has been working quietly with the utility issue and municipal ownership possibly the most important question of the election.

Several candidates have printed on their campaign cards a platform embodying lower utility rates and some are advocating municipal ownership of utility plants. With city council on the verge of employing an engineer for a survey of electrical and water needs of the city, this question is foremost in the minds of candidates.

HEDGES HAS CONTEST

Mayor B. T. Hedges will have opposition at a primary for the first time in several years with Former Sheriff Frank Davis opposing him. Hedges is making no pre-primary statements but is working in his quiet but apparently effective manner. Davis is reported doing quiet campaigning.

The Democrats have placed only one candidate in the field, William B. Cady. This is possibly a precedent because it has been a long while since only one Democrat has tossed his hat into the ring for the mayor's job.

John C. Goeller, a strong advocate of municipal ownership of utilities, is unopposed for re-election to his seat.

Miss Lillian Young, auditor, and Lawrence J. Johnson, treasurer, are unopposed. Carl C. Leist, Democratic candidate for first term as city solicitor, is also unopposed. Paul E. Adkins, Democratic incumbent, is not running again and no Republican has entered the field.

COUNCIL-AT-LARGE

A warm contest is certain with three to be nominated by each party for councilmen at large.

Four candidates have filed for Democratic and four for Repub-

MIRANDA CRABLE KENTUCKY BOUND; GRANTED PAROLE

Miranda Hill Crable and her husband, Lloyd Crable, were enroute Wednesday, to Minfork, Ky., where they will be residents from now on.

Adkins and was placed under a three year parole on condition that she go to Kentucky to live with her mother. If she returns to Ohio she will be subject to a three year term in the workhouse.

Crable was paroled from the workhouse where he was sent by Mayor B. T. Hedges for assault and battery of William Lowery, who later fatally shot Thomas B. Hill, Mrs. Crable's father. Lowery was exonerated on his plea of self defense, a revolver having been taken from Hill's hand after he was dead.

The trip to Kentucky was being made in a truck.

Lester E. Seitz, S. Scioto-st, superintendent at Pickaway-twp centralized school for the past five years, has been elected to the same position at the Centerville centralized school, Montgomery-co, near Dayton, it was learned Wednesday.

He was elected at a salary of $2,250 per year in the new position, it was reported. The Pickaway board recently reduced the superintendent's salary to $1,800 yearly.

Shirley Dreisbach, president of the Pickaway-twp board, said Wednesday that the board would take action at its meeting this evening, but he would not make any statement concerning the probable action of the board.

Mr. Seitz could not be reached for a statement today.

AUTO, TRUCK IN COLLISION

Triangle Farm Scene of Bad Accident; Several Treated At Hospital.

Six persons escaped serious injury at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday when the Essex sedan being driven north on the Scioto Trail by Max Winfough, of Five Points crashed into a truck parked in front of the Triangle farms, three and one-half miles south of Circleville.

The driver of the truck, Henry Stewart, 19, of Ashland, Kv., had stopped to make repairs. He was enroute to Cleveland to get a load of merchandise. He was accompanied by Royce Stewart, 23, and Jesse Evans, 39, both of Ashland, and Joseph Overby and Hazel Ziss, both of 103 E. Livingston-ave, Columbus, two 'hitch-hikers' who had been picked up near Lucasville.

Winfough told members of the sheriff's department that he did not see the truck. He was severely cut about the face.

The occupants of the truck also suffered cuts and bruises and all were brought to Berger hospital where their injuries were treated by Dr. D. V. Courtright.

Both the Essex sedan and the truck were badly damaged, the former being brought to the E. E. Clifton garage, this city, for repairs

Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer, Miller Fissell and Bob Armstrong investigated the wreck.

RAIN CAUSES 'MERC' FALL

Temperature at Noon 72 Degrees; Three-fifths of Inch Recorded.

Cool breezes were blowing and relief from the sweltering temperatures was being enjoyed by Circleville residents today, following two bountiful rains which brought over half an inch of rainfall.

Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weather observer, said that .60 of an inch of rain fell in the two showers Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning, .24 of an inch falling at the former time and .36 of an inch fell during the latter period.

The mercury had fallen from the depressive high mark of 96 Tuesday to 72 Wednesday noon and cool breezes were added to make the atmosphere more enjoyable. Dr. Clarke said the clouds

RAINFALL BALKS AIR DAY PROGRAM

Officials Hope Rain Will Stop To Allow Staging of Part Of Events.

Balked by a steady downpour of rain, officials of the local National Aeronautical association chapter were hoping against hope that the rain would let up long enough to permit part of the fourth annual 'Air Day' program to be staged.

The rain, beginning Tuesday evening and continuing through the greater part of Wednesday, was making the landing field on the Stevenson farm, Jackson-twp, too wte to land upon safely.

At noon officials said if the rain stopped at least a part of the program would take place.

12 MILLIONS FOR SCHOOL, OHIO RELIEF

State - Wide Election on Nov. 7 for Issue is Like of Governor

NEW FIGHT SEEN

Re-consider Sales Tax, Governor's Plea

COLUMBUS, Aug. 2.—A $12,000,000 bond issue for schools and unemployment relief, to be voted upon at the state-wide election on Nov. 7, is the foremost part of the new alternative tax program which Governor George White's "brain trust" has drafted for presentation to the special session of the legislature late this month.

This was learned today on unquestioned authority on the heels of Governor White's flat declaration yesterday that he will again submit the retail sales tax as one of the three alternative plans.

The third section of the program drawn up by the governor's advisers proposes a new schedule of "nuisance" and "luxury" taxes, aimed at many articles as yet untouched by state excise taxes.

TO DIVIDE MONEY

Money derived from the bond issue, providing it were [illegible] by the legislature and [illegible] by the electorate, would be [illegible] into two parts, as follows: $5,000,000 for schools, [illegible] distributed to state-aid [illegible] which now face the danger of [illegible] unable to open, and $5,000,000 for food and clothing for [illegible] poor.

The total is subject to change if relief conditions are [illegible]. Governor White is understood to have given hearty approval to this part of the alternate program.

While the bond issue, if approved, would not provide money until late in the fall, state officials believe that an attempt to push through a bond issue would satisfy the federal relief administration which has served notice that it will grant no more relief money to Ohio until new relief money is raised within the state.

NEUTRAL STAND

Governor White, according to present intentions, will take a neutral stand on the various taxation suggestions, simply telling the legislature it must enact some kind of a program speedily to enable Ohio to continue furnishing relief money to its needy.

Sporting goods, gas and electric appliances, firearms and ammunition, low-priced amusement admissions and almost a score of other items have been suggested for taxation under the new proposed "nuisance tax" schedule.

A fight is already brewing against the governor's plan to again ask for consideration of the sales tax, which was overwhelmingly defeated several weeks ago in the house of representatives.

Senator Daniel J. Gunsett (D), of Van Wert, chairman of the Senate taxation committee, and author of most of the legislature's

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Another twist in fate was recorded Tuesday when Eddie Chapman, right-handed pitcher of the Rochester Red Wings, was purchased by the Washington Senators in first place in the American League.

Chapman had been the property of the Columbus Red Birds for several years prior to being sent to Rochester. It had always been our contention that Chapman was good enough for the Columbus team, or in fact for any team in the association But opposition fired at him by Columbus' noble sportswriters was probably the chief reason why he was sent down the river time after time.

He was with Greensboro, N. C. in the Piedmont league last year on option from the Columbus aggregation and led all hurlers of that league in games and in the championship series pitched every one of Greensboro's victories to win the title. He also slammed the ball far and wide in his trips to the plate.

He was recalled by Columbus this spring and after looking good in early games was 'shipped.' He has been doing well for Rochester and in looking around for a pitcher to his mould staff the Washington manager, Joe Cronin, picked on Chapman.

No one has ever doubted he has a world of stuff. He has always been wild but with Rochester seems to have overcome this handicap.

More power to the pitcher who made good despite unfavorable publicity.

Football's in the news again. Last week Miami university winner of the 1932 Buckeye association title, announced the players it has returning to school, and others are expected to follow soon. Miami will be plenty tough.

Attendance at recreation ball games has been excellent yea, verily, but the 'cash' dropped into the hat when it is circulated has been negligible. Many, many fans cannot afford to drop a nickle or dime into the fedora but many, many more who can, for some reason are 'looking out the window' when it is passed. The league must have money with which to buy recreation balls and the collection is the only way this money can be raised.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25c at drug stores.

FLORIST'S ARTICLE PRAISES BREHMERS

The following article copied from "The Florist's Review" lauds the Brehmer Greenhouses, N. Court st

FINDS THAT EFFORT PAYS

"Anyone who has driven along Ohio route 23, which runs through Columbus and Portsmouth, O., and on south, could not have failed to notice, while passing through Circleville, the attractive Brehmer greenhouse establishment. It consists of a range fronted with a conservatory and display room, as can be seen in the accompanying illustration. A neat interesting sign in front of the conservatory informs one of the firm name.

"R. L. Brehmer, who was formerly in the automobile business, has been proprietor of the establishment for a little over two years, during which time it has become one of the best known retail growing firms in that section of Ohio. This has been due to the fact that the owner has overlooked no opportunity to grow better stock through close contact with the floricultural department at the Ohio State University, Columbus, and also because of the efforts made to satisfy regular customers and to create new ones through modern advertising and sales methods. It should also be mentioned that school of design and short courses are invariably attended by some one from the establishment.

"In looking ahead with confidence, Mr. Brehmer saw fit to rearrange the greenhouse layout and to add the conservatory, which work was recently completed, producing the pleasing arrangement shown.

"Among garden plants, Golden Gleam nasturtiums have been featured by the Brehmer Greenhouses this season, with excellent results. By growing a few plants in the greenhouse, blooms were obtained early. A few of these flowers were sent out to customers with a note explaining the use of this nasturtium for porch box and trellis work. As a result, an enviable business on this item was worked up.

"Many other similar ideas are tried out from time to time by Mr. Brehmer, usually with excellent results. Florist visitors always receive a cordial welcome at the Brehmer Greenhouses, so if you are near, drop in."

SCOUTS ENJOY INTERESTING OUTING AT DISTRICT'S CAMP

Twenty-three members of the troop went to Camp Lazarus July 24. The camp, which is owned and operated by the Central Ohio Area Council, is located approximately twenty miles north of Columbus.

Daily inspection was held by Dr. L. C. Gerlinger. The Iroquois (107's) village received a grade of 97 3-7 percent for the entire grading period. The staff cabin was high. The troop, under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster George A. Leist, introduced a new and much more picturesque method of retreat (lowering of the flag), which was held daily at 6 p. m.

Swimming was held daily at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. Instruction was given daily to beginners, life saving classes and canoeing classes.

Friday night the troop held a flag fight with troop 101 of Marysville, which was encamped just across a ravine in the Sioux village. Troop 107 got all of 101's flag, while 101 got only part of 107's. Thus 107 was victorious.

Saturday night nine members of the troop were initiated. Sports that were enjoyed by the scouts were baseball, volleyball, wrestling and various games.

Mr. Packard, manager of the local bowling alleys, has offered each scout who attended camp, two free games of duck pins, which must be played sometime this week.

The camp staff was K. A. Connelly, director; Mr. Jameson and B. Wiltberger, swimming directors; Norman Armstrong, trader; and George A. Leist, troop leader.

Tests passed at camp were as follows: One merit badge for Junior Red Cross Life Saving Service, one merit badge for canoeing training, and three merit badges for swimming efficiency. Twenty-six tests were passed by tenderfoot, second, and first class scouts.

Scout Edward Howell and Mr. Leist received the only two injuries, Howell's being an injured nose and Leist's, a torn muscle under the lower rib.

Transportation was furnished by Mrs. N. T. Weldon, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, C. T. Gilmore, J. M. Bell, D. L. Buchanan, Sterling Lamb, Charles Goeller, and Bishop Hill.

The Kiwanis club, sponsors of the troop, through its committee, J. E. Goeller, E. H. Rausenberger, and G. R. Geib, made the necessary arrangements for the camping period.

The scouts who returned July 31 were Robert Anderson, Joseph Bell, Jack Brown, Lewis Cooper, Horace Gilmore, Ned Harden, Edward Howell, Clark Hunsicker, David Jackson, Hildeburn Jones, Richard Moon, Philip Moore, Charles Mowery, William Rader, George Roth, Robert Scott, David Steinhauser, Robert Ward, Richard Weldon, William Weldon, John Robinson, Arthur Rooney, George Wharton, and Assistant Scoutmaster George A. Leist.

There will be a Pickaway-co Court of Review held Aug. 25 for those who passed tests at camp.

The troop is to do civic service duty at the air day meet being held today.

RELIGIOUS DRAMA WILL BE STAGED

Tonight another religious drama will be given at Memorial Hall in connection with the evangelistic crusade which is in progress there under auspices of the local Church of Christ. The drama title "Lost and Found" will be given by the following persons which make up the cast. Mary Ruth Noggle, Lucile NewlunETAOIN..N..N... Luciele Newlun, Owen M. Walker and Mrs. Owen M. Walker.

Rev. Small will bring another stirring sermon. A delegation is expected from Columbus to be present at the service tonight.

The service last night was perhaps the most far reaching of any thus far in that the singing of the children was unusually fine and the response to the invitation was generous, five coming out to begin the Christian life. Yesterday three were baptized and this afternoon several others will receive the ordinance.

Services begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

the pumps. A charge is made against the water department by the light plant for this service and one light plant engineer gets his salary from the water department.

One engineer and one fireman operate the light-water plant, exclusive of the filtration plant, by night and one engineer, one fireman and a helper by day. There is a chief engineer who is subject to call day or night.

The boiler plant includes two large Sterling type boilers operating at 175 pounds pressure and superheat is at 150 degrees. The plant includes a surface condenser.

Coal costs $3.15 a ton delivered at the plant, including $2.45 a ton freight, the coal itself costing only 55 cents.

Norwalk has a high tax rate, which apparently, however, cannot be charged to its public utilities. The total rate for 1932 was 26 mills and the municipal tax was 8.8 mills, compared with a total of 19.30 for 1932 for Circleville and a municipal rate of only 7 mills.

One of the big factors in the Norwalk tax rate is the building of a $225,000 sewage disposal plant, which only recently has been put into operation. The plant was forced by the state health department to clear up a bad case of stream pollution to which farmers and land owners over a wide area had objected.

At the time the sewer bonds were voted the city voted for a total bond issue of $475,000 to include extension of sewer lines.

The next article will include some figures on municipal plants at Troy, East Palestine and St. Marys.

RAILROAD URGES CAREFUL DRIVING

N. & W. Spends More Than $700,000 For Wigwags, Other Protection.

The Norfolk and Western Railway has spent more than $700,000 for wigwag signals and other highway grade crossing protection on its line, according to a statement being published by the railroad in newspapers in its territory. In spite of these "advertisements of danger," the statement says, 18 per cent of all grade crossing accidents on the railroad during 1932 were due to automobiles being driven into the sides of trains, and 143 automobiles were driven through and broke down N. & W. crossing gates which has been lowered to protect them against approaching trains.

To solve this serious problem, it is pointed out, the railroads have done, and are doing, more than their part. "But," the statement continues, "the railways alone cannot solve it. It is essentially the problem of the automobile driver, and the public. Automobile drivers and others can entirely avoid highway grade crossing accidents by using even the most ordinary care—by heeding that unmistakable warning signal—the railroad's 'advertisement of danger'."

A Slight Misunderstanding

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE ambitious citizens of a certain English city were giving a pageant commemorate of the ancient history of the community—the Roman invasion, life among the Saxons, the coming of the Normans, the habits and customs of the early Britons, all of it. Pains were taken to insure proper costuming of the characters typical of each succeeding period, and the people of the countryside were impressed as supernumeraries, the principal parts being taken by hired performers.

But the weather marred the success of the affair. It was raw and cold and rainy. Late in the afternoon two lady visitors came upon a shivering bare-legged individual clad in a short tunic, with a skimpy purple cloak swinging from his shoulders, a sword girded about his middle, sandals on his feet and a helmet upon his despondent head.

"Oh," cried out one of them, "you must be Appius Claudius!"

"No mum," said the stranger. "I'm un'appy as 'ell!"

Secret

Jim Farley hugely enjoyed Senator Huey Long's hurried trip to Washington to see who had kicked over his patronage fences. Roosevelt's big amiable chief patronage dispenser not only has the Kingfish worried, but also mystified.

Huey has been laying all his patronage troubles to Colonel John Sullivan, prominent New Orleans sportsman, politician, and bitter anti-Long leader. But Farley told Huey he was all wet, that while Farley and Sullivan were warm friends, and good brother Elks, Farley was not getting his patronage advice from Sullivan.

"Then who is it?" Huey demanded.

"That's a secret," replied Farley, grinning from ear to ear.

At Last

The Treasury has very quietly instituted some sweeping changes in its procedure in reopening closed and restricted banks.

Until recently the initiative for such action was up to bank officials. The Comptroller of the Currency waited in his Washington office until plans were submitted. Then he would act.

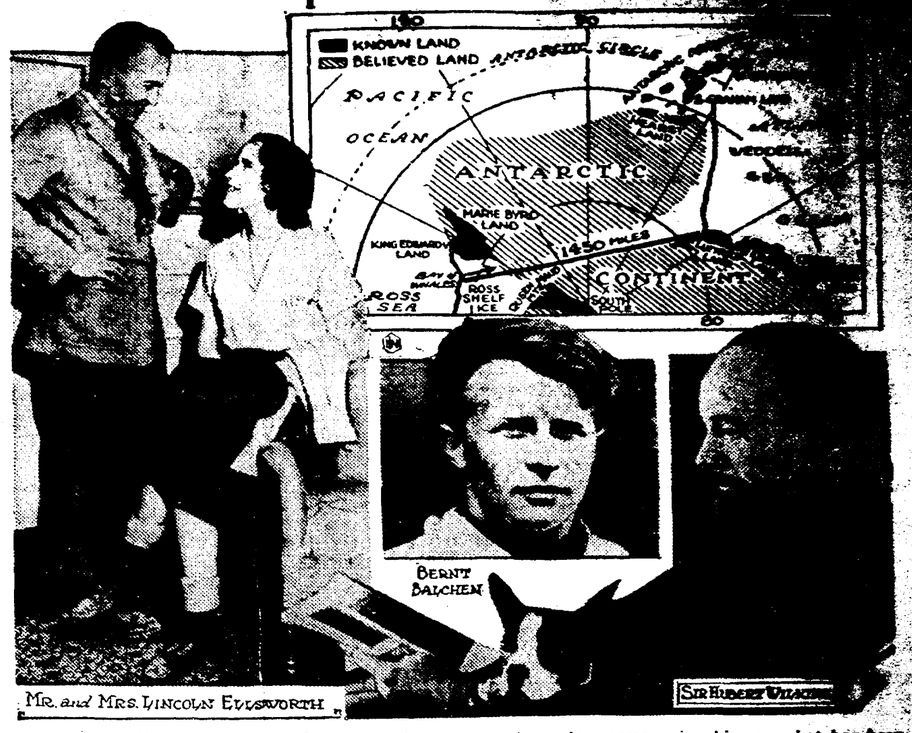

There was some progress in rehabilitating the thousands of 'frozen" banks; but it was slow and not very promising. Billions of depositors' money were tied up, with no immediate prospect of its being released for many months.

The President decided that speed was needed. The frozen billions, if put into circulation, would aid enormously his recovery plan. Also, there was widespread criticism over the way the closed banks were being handled by the Treasury.

So orders secretly went out from the White House several weeks ago to "step on it." Now the Treasury, not the bank officials, is taking the initiative in the proceedings.

"MARY FAITH"
by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXIX

"What can be wrong?" Mary Faith asked herself a hundred times a day. "What have I done, or left undone?"

And she knew that it was nothing she had done or had not done that was responsible for Kim's behavior. She knew that he was bored and out of love with her once more, just as he had been before. Well, he had always come back to her, hadn't he?

"What's the matter with him? He acts as if this place was a boarding house," his mother remarked frequently. "I declare, he runs around almost as much now as he did before he was married."

And so things went until the fifteenth of March.

Mary Faith was always to remember that day because of the three things that happened on it.

The baby made a whole sentence that day, "I see birdie." Mrs. Farrell announced that she was going to be married to Dr. Thatcher the next morning. And Kim broke the news that he intended to leave his wife.

The day started out beautifully, with sunshine and blue sky and everything going on in the flat just as usual.

A little after ten Mrs. Farrell started on her weekly search for bargains. She did this every Friday and returned at nightfall, loaded with toys for the baby, dish-towels that left lint all over the dishes, mayonnaise mixers that refused to work.

"Say 'bye-bye' to Nana," she said, kissing little Kim good-bye. She never spoke of herself as "Grandmother."

"Bye," said the baby, and went on playing with his string of spools.

"Now, isn't it wonderful—the way he says that, Mary Faith! Kimberley walked and talked long before he was two years old, and this baby is as smart as he was!" She never gave Mary Faith any credit for producing a beautiful and precocious child.

"Hold him up to the window, Mary Faith, so he can wave goodbye to his Nana," she said, opening the front door.

But the baby had no eyes for her departing figure when Mary Faith held him up to the window. He went into raptures over two sparrows on the sidewalk, and it was then that he spoke the sentence that Mary Faith interpreted as "I see birdie."

She tried to make him say it again, but he struggled to get out of her arms and back to his beloved spools. But Mary Faith was positive, nevertheless, that he had said those three little words. Late that afternoon, when the flat was in order and dinner was under way, she sat down to make an entry to that effect in his silk-covered baby book. She began to write: "This morning the baby put three words together to make a sentence——" She had reached that point when she heard the sound of Kim's car, and she flung down her pen and started up from her chair.

Long afterward she was to open the book and find that unfinished entry, trailing a long streak of ink after it, like a dark cloud; and the very sight was to bring back the vivid and aching memory of this March afternoon—the yellow glow of the sun in the room, the smell of the geraniums on the window sills, the sound of the vestibule door slamming, and Kim's footsteps on the stairs outside.

It was only five o'clock. Kim hadn't come home as early as this in months! Mary Faith was glad that she had just changed into a clean house dress of horizon-blue cotton crepe—the color that "set off" her blue eyes. The hope that had warmed her heart for months flared up once again as Kim stepped into the room. The hope that on one of these nights he would come home and be his old self—the companionable contented Kim of last spring and of last summer, instead of the sulky and remote man who had come and gone like a paying guest all these past ten weeks.

"What's the matter with him," Kim's mother remarked frequently.

He came in, and as she looked at his face her hopes died. It was hard and cold as if the regular beauty of it had been chiseled out of stone.

"Hello, Kim," she said.

"Hello." He did not look at her or at the baby, who was trying to reach the geranium blossoms on the window sill.

Then he walked out of the room. She heard him go down the hall to his own room and close the door.

A moment later he came back.

"Where's my mother?"

Mary Faith smiled. "This is her bargain day. She's still downtown."

Mrs. Farrell's passion for bargains had always been the source of much good-natured joking in the family. But now Kim saw no humor in Mary Faith's report of his mother's shopping.

His face was as hard as flint as he sat down by the sitting room fire and bit the end from a cigar.

"I'm glad she not here—I want to talk to you," he said, and something in his tone made Mary Faith feel shaky and sick. That was the way he talked when he came to Mrs. Puckett's house to tell her that he did not want to marry her, it was the way he had come home one night, almost two years ago, to tell her that he was going to leave her.

What was he going to tell her now? she wondered.

"What is it you want to tell me, Kim?" Mary Faith heard herself ask steadily. But her lower lip quivered as she drew back her breath and one hand grasped the edge of the mantel shelf, as if she were bracing herself. Before he spoke a word, she knew what he was going to say.

"I won't go on like this any longer," was what he did say, after a pause that seemed like eternity itself to her. "This business of living like two strangers under the same roof may be all right for you, but I expect something more than that from life."

If they had been living like two strangers for the last three months, it was his fault, not hers. She tried to say so, but her throat seemed to have knotted itself all at once so that she was unable to speak a word. She stood staring at Kim and slowly shaking her head.

He went on:

"When two people reach the point where they realize that they've lost interest in each other, the only decent and moral thing for them to do is to part company. Lots of people do it. There's no disgrace in a divorce any more, and not much difficulty. You can stay right on here with my mother and the baby, and I'll send you your housekeeping money every week."

Evidently he had been making his plans for a long time, for he seemed to have all the details worked out.

"You've heard me speak of Morris Gill—fraternity brother of mine? Well, he has a law-office across the hall from our office downtown. You'd better go down to see him in a few days and he'll fix everything up for you. Alimony and so on, I mean. I've told him I'm perfectly willing to turn over to you half of what I make."

Kim stopped then and looked at Mary Faith, clearly waiting for her to make some sort of answer. But she simply stood looking at him, silent and perplexed, with a look of pain in her deep eyes.

How could he come to her like this and casually tell her that he was through with her, tired of their marriage? How could he suggest that all he had to do was to pay her off, month by month, as if she were a pensioner, and that that would settle whatever debt he owed her and the baby? He was cruel and indifferent. She realized that, but it did not alter her love a bit, or lessen it.

"Jack and Claire Maldon have split up, and all she's taking is a third of Jack's salary," she heard him say. "She says she doesn't intend to make him pay through the nose all his life for the mistake they made in getting married. You don't expect more than half of my salary, do you?"

AT THE GRAND

An unusual record of achievement forms the background of Sam Taylor, director of Universal's clever comedy, "Out All Night," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday with Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts in the starring roles.

Among the outstanding productions directed by Taylor during past years were "The Freshman" and "Girl Shy," with Harold Lloyd, "My Best Girl," "Coquette" and "Kiki," starring Mary Pickford, "The Taming of the Shrew," with Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, "Lady of the Pavements," "Du Barry" and many others.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The warm, alluring femininity of the nautch dancer is captured by Constance Bennett in the unusual costume she dons for the Mardi Gras carnival scenes in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Bed of Roses," at the Cliftona theatre, today and Thursday.

Her elaborate attire makes Miss Bennett look especially glamorous. The skirt is of transparent light blue silk trimmed with dark blue velvet and silver spangles. Over this she wears a ravishing blue and silver bolero. Miss Bennett covers the lower part of her face with a blue and silver chiffon veil, and also wears heavy oriental jewelry of carved silver.

Child Should be Given Good Example by Mother

Perils of Placing Objects in Mouth Cannot Be Overemphasized, Avers Doctor

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

HOW OFTEN have you heard a mother scold a child for putting objects in his mouth? Yet, the same mother sets a bad example by placing pins and other small objects in her own mouth. This is an unfortunate practice because children learn to do things by imitation.

If a mother keeps pins in her mouth when mending or dressing, the child imitates her. The youngster places a pin in her mouth when playing with her doll. Too many accidents can be traced to this habit.

Another danger is to give a baby a button or small toy that can be easily swallowed. It is amazing to learn of the various objects that children swallow. Bits of jewelry, pins, coins, marbles, foods, such as dry beans, coffee grains and kernels of corn, are a few of the many objects swallowed by children.

The perils involved in this accident cannot be overemphasized. The swallowed object may become lodged in the upper air passage and obstruct the breathing. Many cases of asphyxiation have occurred as a result of this accident.

Some Dangers

The object may become fixed in the lower part of the windpipe, leading to irritation and infection of the lungs. A swallowed pin may reach the stomach and pass to the intestines. The sharp point of the pin sometimes ruptures or lacerates the intestinal lining.

Never allow a child to play with, or to be near, pins, buttons, nuts, marbles or any small object which he can pick up and put in his mouth. But if the child swallows a foreign body, do not become excited.

Above all, do not pound the victim on the back, for this may interfere with his expelling the object. If you are not sure whether he has swallowed the object, do not put your fingers into his mouth and throat. You may push it down farther.

If the object has disappeared and the little victim does not complain of any pain or discomfort, do not assume that there is no need for alarm. It is possible that he has swallowed it and the object has reached the intestine or is lodged in some part of the lung. This can only be determined by an X-ray picture and it is imperative that this be taken.

Bronchoscope

Fortunately, medical science is now equipped with an instrument that can detect and make possible the removal of swallowed foreign bodies. It is called the "bronchoscope". It is passed down the throat and, by means of a series of bulbs and lenses, the physician is able to locate and remove objects from the throat, windpipe or bronchi of the lungs. "Bronchoscopy," which is the name given this procedure, has saved the lives of many children and prevented many serious complications.

Though swallowing foreign objects is a common occurrence in children, this accident is sometimes encountered in adults. Here it is due to carelessness, and especially to hasty eating and improper chewing of food. Chew your food slowly and carefully and pick the bones out of the fish before swallowing. An impacted fish bone is a painful and dangerous thing to catch in the throat.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THEY tell all kinds of things on themselves in some of these divorce cases. The one that tells sometimes gets the worse than the one the telling is done on.

In Kansas City there was a girl that wasn't much of a housekeeper that had a flop of a marriage, and she sued her husband for divorce. He then sued her, and they went to court to tell it all. She said he had a terrible temper, and the lawyer told her to give examples.

"Well, one morning at breakfast, while he was eating corn flakes, he didn't like the food and he foamed at the mouth and yelled at me.'

"Was that true," says the lawyer to him after a while, "what she told about breakfast?"

"Why, yes, almost. Only it was as much her fault as it was mine that I foamed at the mouth. You see, she gave me soap flakes instead of corn flakes."

Women Appointed to High Posts in "New Deal"

The promised "new deal" means just that to deserving women political workers judging by the number of feminine leaders President Roosevelt has appointed to important posts. The most notable of all was the naming of Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor. This followed with the appointment of Ruth Bryan Owen as Minister to Denmark, our first woman envoy. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming, was made Director of the Mint and the most recent of feminine appointees are Mrs. Marion Glass Bannister, sister of Sen. Carter Glass, of Virginia, as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Miss Stella Akin, of Georgia, to the post of Assistant Attorney-General. Mrs. Julia Wheelock, wealthy New York widow, is said to be slated to be Minister to Jugoslavia. And only thirteen years ago woman didn't even have a vote!

substitute taxation program, recently passed, sounded warning today that he will oppose the sales tax "to the bitter end."

Similar opposition was declared by Senator William H. Herner (D) of Norwalk, chairman of the Senate finance committee.

Governor White's sales tax proposal, it is understood, would call for repeal of the beer, amusement, cosmetic and "liquid fuel" taxes in the Gunsett-Whittemore substitute program.

Unless the governor changes his plans, the sales tax proposal will suggest a 2 per cent rate, the same as was in his original bill.

Carlton Dargusch, youngest member of the tax commission; Major E. O. Braught, 29-year-old state relief supervisor; Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson; Grover Maxwell, Columbus lawyer, and Prof. Clarence Laylin, of Ohio State university, are understood to have drawn up the alternative program.

istration today had his state and local aides all appointed. Ready to launch the re-employment drive in every state and city.

The members of these boards, nine on each state board and seven on each district board, were drafted for their duties, and were organizing while awaiting further instructions.

Firms sending in pledges are predominantly local in scope, though not necessarily small concerns, the reports reveal. Reservoirs of mass employment opportunities, especially the big utility companies, with their national ramifications, are not acting very rapidly.

Johnson today frankly admitted he was not cheered by the way in which these major concerns had responded to date. Nevertheless, he said he had before him approximately 680 permanent codes of as many industries or business groups, aside from the thousands of blanket agreements being poured in hourly.

The Ohio board includes C. A. Dver and Thomas J. Donnelly, both of Columbus; Ralph Perkins of Cleveland; Col. C. A. Sherrill and Wiliam Doepke of Cincinnati; Paul W. Litchfield of Akron; C. F. Ackerman of Mansfield; Herbert A. Jones of Jamestown, and John Ahlers of Dayton.

were still full of rain and more could be expected any time.

While other counties in the state received but little precipitation during the month of July, a total of 3.07 inches were recorded in Circleville by Dr. Clarke. Added to this is the heavy amount of rainfall received here in June, the highest precipitation in the state.

The rain is proving of untold benefit to the farmer's crops, especially the corn and potato crops.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.— Record breaking heat, with a total of 22 dead in the New York metropolitan area in two days and hospitals filled with victims, again today scorched the Atlantic seaboard.

Slight relief in thundershowers and cloudy weather was predicted for later today but fair was the forecast for tomorrow.

Thirteen persons died yesterday in the New York area, the mercury climbing to 95 degrees and giving New Yorkers the third hottest day of the year.

In Pennsylvania record mercury readings were recorded with 102 degrees at Lancaster, 101 in Wilkes-Barre and 99 in Philadelphia, where four died. In Plainfield, N. J., a reading of 100 was recorded.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT KIRWIN.

WHY the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., called its famous cigarette product, CAMEL?

Several persons have attempted to tell me about the origin of this name, but none of the explanations have been definite, and I've been struggling along in the dark for several years. The other day I wrote Mr. S. Clay Williams, president of the concern which makes "Camels" and asked him to solve the mystery. He has very kindly acquiesced and I trust that the readers of this column will enjoy as much as I have, his enlightening remarks. Here is what he has to say:

"'Old Joe,' the famous old camel which for years was one of the main attractions of the Barnum and Bailey circus, was the original of the well-known trade-mark printed on each package of Camel cigarettes.

"Although 'Old Joe' died a premature death in a railroad wreck at Bridgeport, Conn., several years ago, his profile on the Camel cigarette package is well known in all parts of the world.

"Camel cigarettes were first marketed in the fall of 1913. The blend had been decided upon, and it had been agreed that the new cigarettes should be called Camel, and that the picture of a camel should adorn the package in which the new cigarettes were to be sold."

"Right at this psychological time, the Barnum and Bailey circus played in Winston-Salem, N. C., where Camel cigarettes are made by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Circus day in the South is an event, and employees of the R. J. Reynolds factories were released for the day so they could attend the circus.

"One employee, now an important official of the company, saw 'Old Joe' and realized that a picture of this old camel would make an ideal trade-mark for the new Camel cigarette, just about to be marketed. Going to an official of the circus, he asked permission to photograph 'Old Joe.'

"'We haven't got time for such foolishness,' replied the circus man.

"Then it was explained that the R. J. Reynolds factories had released all employees so that they could see the circus. The least the circus could do, it was argued, would be to permit a photograph of one of its animals."

"So, after the circus parade that day, one of the animal trainers led 'Old Joe' to a nearby hillside, and the picture was taken. 'Old Joe,' however, was a curious camel, and was fascinated by the photographer and his camera, and insisted upon turning his head and watching every move made by the photographer.

"Finally, the trainer slapped 'Old Joe's' face and told him to turn around. 'Old Joe' threw his head into the air in an offended manner, closed his eyes, and raised his tail, much like a cat humps its back when angry. Just then the photographer 'shot' the picture.

"That is why, if you will look carefully on a package of Camel cigarettes, you will see the camel with his eyes shut and his tail rigid."

and Cummings, have all carefully looked into the situation, and are thoroughly convinced present police facilities are inadequate to quell crime.

They are apprehensive too, over the impending results of prohibition repeal. With gangsters reaping a rich harvest from "bootlegging" at present, officials wonder to what these "get rich quick guys" will turn their hand when repeal has ruined the bootlegging business.
